FOREWORD

During 1940-42 when I was State Chairman of Michigan Society N.S.D.A.R. Genealogical Records Committee, several Chapters sent in four copies of the records which they had collected. Feeling that these extra copies might be of use to some in the Chicago area I have indexed them along with many which have been sent to me from distant places or gathered by me in the vicinity of Allegan, Mich. I have always copied these records exactly as written in the Bibles.

The first part of the chapter is devoted to a discussion of the various methods of determining the rate of reaction. The second part is devoted to a discussion of the various factors which influence the rate of reaction.

The rate of reaction is defined as the change in concentration of a reactant or product per unit time. It can be determined by measuring the change in concentration of a reactant or product over a given period of time. There are several methods for determining the rate of reaction, including the initial rates method, the integrated rate law method, and the half-life method. The initial rates method involves measuring the initial rate of reaction at different concentrations of reactants. The integrated rate law method involves measuring the concentration of a reactant or product at different times and using the integrated rate law to determine the rate constant. The half-life method involves measuring the half-life of a reactant or product and using the half-life to determine the rate constant. The rate of reaction is influenced by several factors, including the concentration of reactants, the temperature, the presence of a catalyst, and the surface area of a solid reactant. The rate of reaction increases with increasing concentration of reactants, increasing temperature, and increasing surface area of a solid reactant. The rate of reaction also increases in the presence of a catalyst.

CITY OF BOSTON
FROM 1630 TO 1800

The first settlement in Boston was made in 1630 by a group of Puritan settlers who came from England. They were led by John Winthrop, who gave them the name of the City of the Puritans. The settlers were looking for a place where they could practice their religion freely. They found Boston, and it became one of the most important cities in the New England colonies. The city grew rapidly, and by 1700 it was one of the largest cities in the colonies. It was a center of trade and commerce, and it played a major role in the American Revolution. The city was destroyed by fire in 1780, but it was rebuilt and it continued to grow. Today, Boston is one of the most important cities in the United States.

Mrs Olive Selleck

My father, Dudley Bailey Clark, was born in the town of Lyme, New London county, Conn., April 10, 1795. When he was a young man twenty-four years of age, he visited his only brother Elijah B Clark who lived in Penn., Wayne county, Damascus township. As the prospects for his trade seemed good he opened a shop for shoemaking and did a successful business for several years. After my father had been in business a few months he made the acquaintance of a young man by the name of Thomas Newcomb who at that time with his father, Garner Newcomb, had taken a contract to build a bridge across the Delaware river. My father accepted an invitation from Thomas Newcomb to visit his home situated in the town of Wurtsboro, Sullivan county, New York. At that place my father met my mother for the first time. Several pleasant visits were made.

My mother, Matilda Newcomb, at that time was seventeen years old and an engagement of marriage followed in the year eighteen twenty one, first of May. They made a few visits on horseback at that time considered a very pretty way of traveling. After visiting relatives in Orange county, New York, they went to housekeeping a short distance from the Delaware river in the town of Damascus, Wayne county, Penn. At this place my three brothers and myself were born.

In the year 1831 my father moved to the village of Wurtsboro, Sullivan county, New York. My fourth brother was born at that place, May 12, 1832. After the birth of my brother Lucian, the fourth one, my mother was sick for several months. Father's business was dull all the time we lived at Wurtsboro. He moved to Cohocton, Sullivan county in 1834. The following year my brother Thomas Newcomb was born Sept 23 1835. When he was one year old my father came to Michigan with his family. At that time Michigan was a territory.

The first winter we lived in the town of Orion, Oakland county near my uncle, Elijah B Clark. Early in the spring of thirty-seven father built a log house in the town of Oxford, Oakland county. At that time the neighborhood was known as the Travis settlement (three brothers by the name of Travis having settled there the year previous) Let me write here - one old house is still standing, two of my brothers visited there last month. Our visits there are pleasant yet there are sad reminiscences. Our good father died there Aug 11, 1847.

Seventeen months before we lost our father, our dear brother, Ezra, died aged one year and five months. He was my seventh brother.

Pioneer life has been described by many better than I can do at this time. There were many things that to us children seemed strange, living in the woods, no fences to be seen, but few roads had been laid out at that time. Trees had been blazed i.e. a small piece of bark had been removed from one side. Three miles east of where we lived there were not any houses until we reached what is now quite a prosperous village, Oxford, in the township of the same name

Healthy children can nearly always find something that will interest them for a time. We found huckleberries, also cranberries quite plenty and we enjoyed picking them. In the winter we often rode after the oxen in a big sleigh and with marsh hay and old quilts to make us comfortable we would go two miles(with a few besides ourselves) to visit our neighbors. We were comfortable and happy as circumstances would admit. We ⁸¹enjoyed ourselves. Sometimes it was eleven o'clock at night before we returned to our homes feeling that we had had a good time

I will relate what one of our neighbors said and did in the spring of thirty-seven, said they had been without meat all winter and he could not go about his spring work if he did not have some pork to eat. One morning he started early for Pontiac, about nineteen miles, bought a smoked ham weighing twenty pounds, put it in a bag and carried it home, walking the distance, thirtyeight miles.

My parents missed many things they had been accustomed to having. They were patient and cheerful seeking opportunities to do good. Several months elapsed before we had religious or school privileges. At that time the teachers were poorly qualified. Our parents deeply regretted that their eldest childrens' opportunities were so limited. At the age of fourteen my school days closed, many are the times that I have regretted that it was so, even at this present age of my life I feel the need of the grand opportunities that most of our children have at this period. I taught my first school when I was fifteen, but not for long as my help was needed at home, but many times the teachers would come to me for help in their work.

A few years after father died mother sold the old homestead. Four of my brothers at this time went out to work and care for themselves. Lewis, my eldest brother was serving in the war with Mexico when our father died. Eugene, my second brother, was lost in the battle of the Wilderness, May 14, 1864. My two youngest brothers, Newcomb and Egbert, also served in our Civil War. I have always had a deep affection for my brothers. I am their only sister, perhaps this has been the cause for the sympathy and love that exists between us.

I am sorry I know so little to write about. My mother's father ~~Gather~~ Newcomb, was born in 1740 in the town of Beekman, Dutchess county, New York. He married Sarah Tyler, her parents living on the banks of the Delaware river, New York. I have no recollections of my grandparents as they died before my remembrances.

I hope my children and their children will be interested in reading this imperfect sketch of my married life.

In the year 1844, a respectable family by the name of Selleck moved into my father's neighborhood. Their children numbered seven at that time, six sons and one daughter whose names were as follows: James, Harvey Junr., Hubbard H., Henry S., Samuel, Edward and Theodore. The daughter's name was Minerva. Several years previous to this period they had lost a daughter, her name was Mary Ann, her husband was Darwin Clark. I have been told that their married life was a happy one, yet a short and sad one - the father and mother, a little one of but a few days were called from earth to heaven. Their remains are in Clarkston, Oakland county Cemetery

In the spring of '44 several young ladies of my acquaintance were invited to meet at the home of my future father-in-law to sew for Mrs Selleck's family. Mrs Selleck put in my lap a pair of shirt sleeves to make, as she did so she said they were for James (I had never met that son) I replied if they are for James I will make them good, not a thought that I was sewing for my future husband. We were busy sewing, also talking, when Mrs Selleck came into the room with her two eldest sons. After introducing them their mother invited them to take tea with us. An hour or two was spent pleasantly. After the young men went away one of the girls said "Isn't Hubbard Selleck very nice looking?" Most of the girls said Yes. I replied that to me he does not look as good as his brother

James. About two weeks after our pleasant tea party Mrs Selleck requested her son James to go around to my father's and invite my mother to take tea at his father's the following day. This, I learned afterwards was only a ruse to meet me at my home. Several opportunities were made easy for us to meet, a feeling of strong friendship shortly followed our pleasant interview. Our first ride together was the fourth of July, attending the first celebration that was ever held in the village of Clarkston. The day was a beautiful one and every one that had met to celebrate the day seemed happy.

When we were returning home Mr Selleck asked permission to visit me once in two weeks. After several visits had been made a feeling stronger than friendship existed. In the course of a few months Mr Selleck asked me to be his wife. I replied I cannot enter into that relation except my parents are willing that it should be so. Mr S smiled and said "I asked your father and mother's consent some time ago" At that time we were married in the sight of God. The following March our wedding took place. It was the most notable event that had occurred in our neighborhood. It was a great social event, the first wedding of any importance. My father went to Detroit for wine. Before the wedding we paid many visits on horseback, Mr Selleck and I riding the same horse. These little gatherings were of great importance being the first held in Oakland county.

The summer passed without any event of importance. Sept 24 we moved into the town of White Lake, Oakland county, Mich., sixteen miles from my father's. At the time I fully realized that life with its many cares and responsibilities and many privations would be ours to battle with. Our place was new, aside fifteen acres my husband had broken or rather ploughed in the summer also had put up a small house for our future home. Before we came in sight of our place Mr Selleck said "I am afraid you will be homesick going to live in the woods nearly half a mile to your nearest neighbors and such a poor little house." When we came in sight of our little home I did feel quite badly but my husband never knew it. In a short time I was happy and contented, doing all my strength would allow me to do to make our home what it should be.

Perhaps my grandchildren would like to have me write about our first little house. It was built of logs, the spaces between them were wide enough to see some stars, also trees. To me the sight was handsome when the nights were clear. The roof was made of thin pieces of wood from oak trees kept in place by poles being laid on them. Before cold weather your grandpa Selleck had to go some distance to get clay to mix with sand to close up the cracks between the logs and we were made comfortable for the winter.

On Feb 18 1846 our first baby was given us. She was very welcome and the grandparents felt quite proud of her as she was the first grandchild. We lived six miles from a neighbor and Lucia was always a comfort and sunbeam to me in my lonely but not unhappy life. I taught her to read and to knit before she was six years old.

Those happy days passed away too soon. My father died before our baby Lucia was eighteen months old. More than five years passed before any other striking event occurred in our family. On the 30th of Nov., 1851 our home was made brighter by the birth of our second little girl. Previous to the coming of our second child I had thought we could not love another baby as much as our first one. We did - she was a sweet little one. She remained ever the same to all that were acquainted with her. Her Papa named her Mary M., for several years we called her Mollie. The dear child is free from sickness, sorrow and pain, her death occurred Dec 15 1896. Edwin A. Russell, her husband died April 11, seven months previous. Their two children, Mabel and Floyd, are married and are living in the town⁸⁵ of Genessee, Mich.

In the year of '48 my husband and myself were baptized and united with the Baptist Church of Clarkston. The distance was five miles, our mode of conveyance at that time was riding after oxen. We went to church quite frequently, more than seven years, sometimes with two children, earlier at church than many village people.

At that time (1852) my health was very poor before and after our third little one was given us. She was a delicate but dear baby, her name was Matilda Hortense. She was born Nov 26, 1853 and was ours to keep only nine months and twenty-two days. Before the birth of our third child my husband thought it would be best for us to sell our place in White Lake and move to Shiawassee, town of Burns. Our farm consisted of one hundred and twenty acres. In August, 1854 we went to Flint to visit Mr Selleck's father and mother. Our baby was taken sick and died there. In the Spring of '54 we moved to Flint. Our home was in the city for several years. June 13, 1858 our hearts were made happy; parents and children were very proud of our sweet baby brother. One year and three days later our home was sad, our hearts were heavy with grief, our dear baby was taken from earth to that home where sorrow and death never enter. Our dear son's name was Du Fay

With us no event worthy of particular mention occurred until a bright healthy little daughter was given us Sept 26 1863. The first time her Papa saw her he said, "she is a nice looking child. Her sister Lucia felt quite matronly when she could dress the baby. She was named Blanche Newcomb, now she is married and the mother of three good active children. Her husband (a very good man) is Douglas Mills. He is proud of his son, Harold Newcomb, who if he lives until Dec 29 1895 will be one year old. Our dear little boy will be five years old the twenty-ninth of next month.

November 30, 1900

How rapidly time is passing away. If our darling Mollie had lived she would have been forty-eight years old today. She was a welcome baby, we loved the bright sweet one always, somewhat delicate, I tried to give her good care, we kept her until nearly three years ago, then she went to rest, we sincerely trust asleep in Jesus from which none wake to weep

While my mother wrote very little about her daughter Lucia and family, they were very dear to her. I well remember when Percy the eldest and first grandchild (I was then eight years old) was born my father was ploughing and my mother sent me down to the field to tell him to come up to the house, that a neighbor had brought a letter of much importance - when I heard them saying Grandpa, Grandma, and saying I was Aunt Blanche I was ^{so} hilarious over it they threatened to tie me to the door knob, a favorite method of punishing us.

When Carl was born both his father and mother were very proud and said he was such a dear baby, never making trouble; they were all very proud when a baby girl came May 25 to their home in Genessee. I went to my sister, walking part of the way through mud over my shoes as there was no one going from Mt Morris, the nearest place I could go on the cars as I could not wait for someone to come and get me.

My mother was always very proud of her grandchildren and well do I know that Carl alone was the one that appreciated her wonderful mind and love of all things beautiful. She died at Lansing Sept 30, 1904

This copy was made for General Richardson chapter D A R., Pontiac, Mich., by May Rockwell Howlett (Mrs E V) through the courtesy of Miss Katherine Clark, 168 Auburn Ave., Pontiac, Mich., a daughter of Lewis Clark, described in Mrs Selleck's Memoirs as " my eldest brother"

THE YESTERYEAR

by

LULU M BECKER GOING (Mrs H F)

Pontiac, Mich

On May 12 1833, my grandmother, Chloe Durkee, was born. Her birthplace was one mile south of Pine Lake and five miles from Pontiac, Michigan

Her father, Jedediah Durkee, was of Welsh descent and a native of Vermont. Her mother, Rheuna Farnum, was a native of New York. They migrated to Michigan in 1830 from Darien, New York, coming via Lake Erie to Detroit, thence to Pine Lake by ox team. The trip from Detroit took three days - one to reach Royal Oak, another to reach Pontiac, and the third to reach their new home in an unbroken wilderness. A tract of one hundred sixty acres had been "taken up" from the government in 1825

At the time of my grandmother's birth there were three children in the family, two sons and one daughter. Later two more daughters and three sons were born. All reached maturity except one son.

This pioneer family was first housed in a log cabin with one room and a loft. The first winter it had no door, only a heavy blanket fastened at the top and sides with wooden pegs and a log rolled over the bottom to hold it in place

Work was very scarce and I have heard my grandmother tell how her father in the winter would walk to Pontiac, five miles away, split rails all day at the little settlement and return on foot. For his labor he received the price of one fourth of a pound of tea. Often on his return in the evening he saw wolves on Pine Lake. In order to keep them away from the house a bright fire was kept in the fireplace all night and high enclosures were necessary to safeguard the sheep

About this time one of the neighbors a mile or so away lost ⁸⁸ his home by fire and the Durkees took this family into their home for several weeks until a new home could be built. The total inmates of the house were then twenty-four.

Later a frame house was built. This, my mother remembers very well. It consisted of the parlor, living room, the big kitchen with its fireplace, a bedroom and pantry on the first floor. The second floor had four bedrooms, two in each of the front and back chambers.

The duties required to provide food, clothing and household necessities for this family were many and the daughters were trained in the many arts of housewifery.

The food preparation was no simple matter and to the cook of today it would seem an impossibility. The cooking utensils were made of iron, brass and copper, and the brightness of the latter two reflected the housekeeper's ability. A bowl of buttermilk was the best cleaner for the copper. All the bread, biscuit, pies, cookies, puddings, fried cakes and cakes were made in the home. This home also made its own crackers. The mother made the latter and the cheese while to the three oldest daughters fell all the heavy work of the home.

The dairy work required quite a bit of time. The girls helped with the milking and made the butter. The milk was set in pans and allowed to stand until it soured. This did not take long in summer as there was no refrigeration in those days. After skimming the milk the cream was placed in a stone churn. When sufficient cream had accumulated the churning was done. The time required for doing this varied with the temperature of the cream and the season of the year. The buttermilk was used in the preparation of many food dishes. The quality of the butter depended upon good washing, working out the buttermilk and salting. Of course, all the butter was worked over by hand in a wooden bowl with a wooden ladle. The cheese was of two kinds, the firm and the cottage type. The former was made⁸⁹ of the whole milk and required rennet for the curding. A coloring was also used. To make it firm the curd was placed in a press and later wrapped in a white cloth which had been greased with butter. Each day the cloth was rubbed with butter and the cheese turned over. This process lasted for a month or six weeks. They were then ready for the market.

In the spring of the year poultry raising was begun and much time was spent in the setting of the eggs and the care of the young fowls. Later in the season the geese were picked for their feathers and down to be used for pillows and feather beds. In the late fall the fowls were dressed for the market.

Another spring task was the soap making. All through the year the rinds of meat and other grease were kept. A barrel filled with wood ashes was set up on a standard tilted forward. Water was poured on the ashes and the lye from this leach ran into a kettle or other receptacle at the front of the barrel. The grease was placed in an iron kettle and to this enough of the lye was added to "eat up" the grease. The lye was strong enough when it bore up an egg. A fire was placed under the kettle and the contents boiled until all the grease had disappeared. It required ability to be a good soap maker.

Twice a year, spring and fall, the bed ticks were filled with fresh straw from the straw stack in the barnyard. Oat straw was considered the best, but if one could spare the time, a tick filled with the white inner husks of the corn ear was considered much better. A filled bed tick placed on the corded rope with a feather bed atop was about as difficult to reach as an upper berth in a boat. To keep the bed comfortable the straw or husks must be stirred up each morning and the feather bed shaken and turned over.

Then too, each spring and fall the carpets had to be taken up and fresh marsh grass or straw placed under them to protect them from the contact with rough floors. In order to make them lie smooth one needed to pull them tight and then tack them securely.

As the season advanced and the fruits and vegetables made their appearance, preparation for the winter food supply began. Corn and pumpkins were dried as well as apples, plums, peaches, cherries, currants, elderberries and huckleberries.

Fruits were also preserved by cooking until very thick, one pound of fruit with one pound of sugar. Apple butter was also made and cider from sweet apples boiled down and then cooked with apples was a main dish for winter. Along with pickles and jellies came the wine making. This was not made every year as a half barrel was made at a time. A sister of my grandmother, Calista, by name, was an expert in making currant wine. We still have a bottle of wine which was made by this great aunt before 1860. No pudding sauce was quite right without a bit of wine or brandy for flavoring.

Dipping candles was a tedious task. Prepared beef tallow was put into a boiler with two parts of hot water to one part of tallow. Sticks were put through the loops of six strips of tightly twisted candle wicking. There were eighty of these sticks. As the hot tallow floated on the top of the water it would adhere to the candle wicking as each stick with its quota of wicks was immersed in the tallow bath. After dipping the ends of the stick were placed on two boards. When the eightieth stick was done the first one would get its turn again - and so back and forth until the candles had attained the required size. Forty dozen candles were thus made at one time and two days were often required to complete this task.

In the late fall the hogs and beef cattle were killed for food. The women of the family had to care for the lard and tallow. This was called "trying it out" and the strips or pieces of fat placed in a kettle with water and boiled required some time. The white lard and creamy white tallow was removed from the receptacle after it had hardened. Sausage and the mincemeat were made after the annual butchering.

The spinning wheel, the reel, the swifts and the loom were some of the necessary equipment of this pioneer home. All the yarn for stockings, mittens, blankets and clothing had to be spun and dyed. Mother well remembers the blue dye tub which stood by the fireplace in her grandmother's kitchen and she has her grandmother's book containing the dye recipes. The stockings and mittens for this family were knitted by hand and the material for woolen garments and bedding was woven. Among the choice heirlooms from this home are the blue and white coverlets made of white cotton warp with blue wool woof. Through all the years the blue has kept its original color.

The carpets were also made with cotton warp and the woof of rags, cotton or wool. Sometimes there would be stripes of color or perhaps just the "hit or miss" weave. We have a piece of rag carpet which is unusual in that the rags were used for the warp and the cotton cord for the woof.

The garments were all made by hand even to the mens' suits and overcoats. One of these sisters was a tailoress working at home for a Pontiac tailor. The first sewing machine, a Grover and Baker, was bought when my mother was quite a girl and it was used by one member of the family for a while and then taken to the home of another member.

The harvest time demanded more workers for the field and this brought three or four more extra men to the farmhouse table. Then, at harvesting time, three or four men with the threshing outfit would be housed and fed for two days or more besides ten or twelve neighbors who exchanged threshing work with each other. These would be fed for at least two meals a day.

The leisure time was spent piecing quilts, quilting, tying comfortables, embroidering on cotton, knitting lace and bedspreads, crocheting and tatting.

The social life was not lacking in this pioneer community. Parties were frequent and then the carpets would be taken up and dancing enjoyed until the early morning. When one entertained company which was often, there were no "cooperative meals". The hostess managed to prepare and serve the meal and at the same time entertain her guests.

The religious life was not neglected. The circuit rider visited these homes and later Sunday School was held in the Pine Lake school house.

The spirit of neighborliness extended for miles and no ones' tasks or responsibilities were too great to prevent helping in time of need, sickness or death. It is not strange that the descendants of these pioneer families still retain the friendship of their forebears.

When grandmother was eighteen years of age she was married to my grandfather, William Lester Coonley, and went into a home of her own. She was the mother of five children of whom my mother was the eldest. She had but little opportunity for an education yet in the art of homemaking there was evidence of great ability. She had no fear of difficult tasks. Her work was well planned and executed. She gladly accepted new ideas and methods for household tasks

She was especially skilled in all kinds of needlework. In an emergency she acted quickly but with calmness. She was true to her convictions, did not fear to speak her mind, yet was kind in her judgment. I honor her memory; for to her instruction and patience I owe my appreciation of the handicrafts.

BATES * BROWN FAMILY

Fort Plain, N.Y.

Nov. 5, 1909

My Dear Miss Brown:

I thought it might please you to have the records of the BROWN family as far as I have been able to get it. So I have prepared a copy of the BATES * BROWN part for you. You can fill in the LEWIS & OKEN part when you get them and I hope send a copy of those two to me. You may not be able to get dates of all any better than I do and it is difficult if no good family record has been kept. However I shall be glad for what you can do. I hear the record after Roxanna Bates will not be in the book as they only go as far as the name of BATES, so thought I would finish your part of the record for you.

I shall be pleased if you will write me if you receive this all right.

Sincerely your far away cousin

(signed) Mrs. Rachel S Failing

R.F.D. Route 1, Fort Plain, N.Y.

SCRAP BOOK of MRS. T. A. BOOT b. 1861

EXCERPTS

The excerpts are from the Scrap Book owned by Mrs. T. A. Boot (Florence May Peck), 62 West 11th St., Holland, Michigan.

She was born July 15, 1861, Fort Atkinson, Wis. At the age of two years she accompanied her mother who was returning to live in North Brookfield, Madison Co., New York. She was married there, but later was a resident of Grand Rapids and Holland, Michigan.

The Scrap Book was originally owned and made by Eunice Charlotte Peck, mother of Mrs. T. A. Boot, born Feb. 3, 1831 North Brookfield, N.Y., wife of Thomas Peck, 1829 - 1863.

These excerpts were copied from the Scrap Book by Mrs. Richard F. Keeler, and typed by Mrs. Harold B. Niles, members of Elizabeth Schuyler Hamilton Chapter, D.A.R., Holland, Michigan, April 1939. Unfortunately the left hand margin of this typed record was too narrow ($\frac{1}{2}$ in.) to make binding practical, so during Feb. 1941 it was retyped from Mrs. Niles copy by Ruth Robbins Monteith of Martin, Michigan.

REVOLUTION

The history of the American Revolution is a story of the struggle for liberty and independence. It begins with the early years of settlement, when the colonists sought to establish a government of their own. The struggle for independence was a long and difficult one, but it was finally won in 1776. The new nation was born, and the people of the United States have since enjoyed the fruits of their struggle.

The American Revolution was a turning point in the history of the world. It was the first time that a colony had successfully broken away from the control of a great power. The new nation was born, and the people of the United States have since enjoyed the fruits of their struggle.

The following Names I have recently copied from an heirloom quilt made in 1851 and presented to the Rev. Jonathan Benson and his wife by the ladies of the Church of which he was pastor.

In the center of each block appears a name and address. It might be helpful to some one having ancestors living in Yates Co. N.Y. at that time.

Two of the blocks had July 4, 1851 on them, so I come to the conclusion the entire quilt was made at that time.
